First Church Notes "Old North."

Rev. Robert Carey of Weymouth, a representative of the Anti-Saloon League gave an address on that subject last Sunday morning.

The annual parish meeting was held last Monday evening in the chapel of the Old North church. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: clerk, W. J. Sladen; treasurer, Rufus Bates; moderator, Frank Bates; music committee, Mary Lund and J. H. Freeman; auditing committee, J. H. Sladen and J. L. Wilkes; finance committee, W. Hunt and F. C. McDowell.

Belled the Boundary.

"Artificial boundaries are generally invisible, but a highly artificial one forces itself upon the notice of the traveler by rail between the Lake of Lugano and Lake Maggiore. The line between Italy and Switzerland is followed for a considerable portion of the journey, and it is marked by a lofty barrier of wire netting hung with bells for the purpose of preventing smugglers from getting into Italy without attracting the attention of armed defenders of Italian revenue. In the distance, however, the line is a natural boundary between Italy and France provided by Mont Blanc, which in spite of its naturalness is so vague that it is still uncertain whether the summit of the mountain is Franco-Italian or all French—London Chronicle.

Mortification Well Earned.

An Englishman, alone with Richardson, the novelist, said to him, "I am going to pay my respects to the author of 'Sir Charles Grandison' for at Paris, and at the Hague, and in fact, at every place I have visited, it is much admired."

Richardson appeared not to notice the compliment, but when all the company were assembled addressed the gentleman with, "Sir, I think you were saying something about 'Sir Charles Grandison'."

"No, sir," he replied, "I do not remember ever to have heard it mentioned."—From Orville's "Cyclopedia of Anecdotes."

Remarkable.

"One of the astronomers claims that he has charted 20,000 new worlds."

"By George," it is true, but the fact that he has the use of the largest telescope in the world."

"I wasn't thinking of that. What I mean is, I think it is with so many other worlds in existence the lady who is acting as stepmother for my children had to light on this one."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Memory Tells Disturb.

I remember telling the bishop of Rome that I envied him his splendid memory. "I don't," he replied, "I don't think you can do. Memory is a very delicate thing. It is like a flower, it will quite wither, if I told him, 'I don't get frightened.'"

The bishop said: "That's the worst thing you can do. Memory is a very delicate thing. It is like a flower, it will quite wither, if I told him, 'I don't get frightened.'"

A Matter of Luck.

"Bad luck is sometimes good luck."

"Not at all. Did you ever get a club to fill a heart flush and afterward discover that some one else had a full house?"—Detroit Free Press.

A Legal Complaint.

"Yes, young Cooke handled the case magnificently. He proved beyond the possibility of a doubt that the accused man wasn't guilty."

"But he was guilty, of course."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

GATHERED UP.

Most men's Waterloo contains no water.

If you're money to burn, you'd best put it into coal.

Some young men, when trying to carve their fortune, make the mistake of using a glass bottle instead of a jack-knife.

"That policeman who comes to see you Bridget—is he an officer of good standing?"

"Just fat, mum; he's a stop-shoulder."

"Jack, I told me the most exciting secret and made me swear never to tell a living soul."

"Well, hurry up with it. I'm late for the office now."

Mama—"Willie, what do you mean by breaking all those eggs?"

Willie—"I heard papa say that there's money in eggs, and I'm trying to find it."

This summer the Union Pacific Railroad will install soda fountains on some of its trains.

Automobiles are becoming so common that our social leaders are thinking of adopting the aeroplane. When the aeroplane has become common probably they will adopt submarines. After that, the Lord only knows.

"If I can't get that new dress I'm going home to mamma."

"Oh! buy the dress; the ticket and expenses of your trip would be more than it would cost."

The readiness with which representative men of the nation are coming forward to express their confidence in Booker T. Washington is a mighty powerful testimony that a life of decent living is a splendid asset for any man.

Though a man has all other perfections and wants discretion, he will be of no great consequence in the world, but if he has his single talent in perfection and a common share of others, he may do what he pleases in his particular station of life.—Addison.

"You look sweet enough to kiss," says the impressed man.

"So many gentlemen tell me that," coyly answers the fair girl.

"Ah! That should make you happy."

"But they merely say that," she replies.

"They merely tell me the facts in the case and never prove their statements."

I have been more and more convinced the more I think of it that, in general, pride is at the bottom of all great mistakes. All the other passions do occasional good, but whenever pride puts in its word, everything goes wrong, and what it might really be desirable to do, quietly and innocently, it is mortally dangerous to do proudly.—Ruskin.

A young man representing a well known make of motorcar had called, discussed intelligently the points of the automobile he was endeavoring to sell, had given a flawless demonstration—

But the prospective amateur motorist before mortgaging his house still wanted to be thoroughly convinced, and so he said: "What you say about your car may be all right. The engine runs very nicely and it looks good to me, but tell me one thing—have you ever sold any of these cars to your own personal friends?"

The salesman smiled. "Have I? Why three months ago I was engaged to a girl and I sold one of those identical cars to my prospective father-in-law!"

"Yes, indeed. I've now got the girl, a contented father-in-law and an enthusiastic customer as well."

He made the sale.—Life.

"Harriman had an almost supernatural instinct for knowing what was going on and who was doing it in the mystery of stock manipulation. Once when Southern Pacific had been going up fast, Harriman and various banking houses buying in concert, he called up on the telephone one of his private brokers. 'Somebody is selling,' he said. 'Yes, sir,' was the answer. 'Well, hand the market 25,000 for me.' Immediately he called up the head of a banking firm much interested in the markets. 'Who's selling Southern Pacific?' he asked. 'I don't know; we haven't been able to find out,' was the answer. 'Oh! tell me,' snapped Harriman. 'It's your house.' And he cut off the connection before any reply to him could be made.—Exchange.

"Have you ever studied the art of self-defense?" said a young fellow to a man of magnificent physique and noble bearing. The elder man looked at his questioner with a quiet smile and then answered thoughtfully: "Yes, I have studied and practiced it."

"Ah," said the other eagerly. "Whose system did you adopt?"

"Solomon's," was the reply.

Somewhat abashed, the young student asked: "Solomon's? What is the special point of his system of training?"

"Briefly this," replied the other: "A soft answer turneth away wrath."

For the moment the young man felt an inclination to laugh and looked at his friend anxiously to see whether he was serious. But a glance at the accomplished athlete was enough, and soon a very different set of feelings came over the youth as his muscular companion added, with silent emphasis, "try it!"—Christian Endeavor World.

ON THE FARM

Read this column and you can have it delivered at your house with something new every week for a full year by sending $2.00 to this office now.

This is the best time of year for culling out the poor cows.

The mountain of work before you can all be worked off if you just keep a cheery heart and peg away.

Rubbish and brush in the orchard, y-? Gather and burn at once, and thus destroy harboring places of insect, fungi and other pests.

No man can select good cows with unerring certainty, for there are many internal defects of which there is no outward evidence.

Those who treat their horses kindly can work the brood mares up to the very day they foal their colts without harming them.

The baby chick trade has grown wonderfully. Twenty years ago poultrymen never dreamed of starting a business in this line, while now hundreds of thousands of these innocents are annually sent out.

Profitable farming and gardening calls for more thought put into the business, but it also calls for considerable labor, and that given at the right time.

To grow crisp early vegetables the soil must be deep, thoroughly pulverized and well filled with rotted stable manure.

Have a supply of good milking stools in the dairy barn, but use them for milking purposes, and not for beating the cows.

Asparagus is one of the best single crops one can grow requiring only a full appreciation of demands as well as difficulties. Once properly set and cared for it is good for 20 years. Rhubarb, if liberally fed, should give a gross return of $500 to $600 per acre yearly.

The small gardener, who is cultivating every inch of his patch with his wheel-hoe is almost a lost cause. He is far less dependent upon the rains than the large farmer. Indeed, he is nearly independent. He need never have an off season; for beginning right, in the spring, he can cook up the rains in his soil and keep them there on tap throughout the summer.

Fresh eggs, fresh vegetables, fresh fruits—these are the true luxuries of life, and all are at the command of the owner of a small suburban property, if he will work for them. Two dozen hens should supply all the eggs the family needs and a few more fowls will be enough to pay for the small amount of grain that will be needed to supplement the table waste, if they are given a reasonable run.

To realize most, one must come into a knowledge of soil structure and soil conditions, climatic influences, market demands and facilities, and in his own mental and physical makeup, fit the life demanded. He must be a student, a thinker and a worker in his field. He cannot depend very much upon textbooks or bulletins, except for suggestions, else lacking the stamp of individuality his work will not reach highest levels.

The farmer should be a student of machinery until he becomes a farm machinist. Farming has now become a job with machinery from spring to fall, and the man who knows how to handle his machinery to best advantage does the best work and makes it easiest for his horses. There is even a knack of putting a sulky plow in trim.—Denver Field and Farm.

There is probably no other single feature connected with the care of the cow during and for several weeks following the time when she brings forth her calf that will do so much to keep her udder in a normal and healthy condition as to see to it that she always has a dry, well bedded place on which to lie at night or in rest times during the day. Investigation into the subject by veterinarians shows that a majority of cases of milk fever are due to carelessness on this one point, through allowing the new milk cow to lie down in cold and damp stables or out-door places.

DON'T LEAVE THE FARM.

Come, boys, I have something to tell you. Come near, I would whisper it low. You are thinking of leaving the homestead. Don't be in a hurry to go!

The city has many attractions, But think of the vice and sin. When once in the vortex of fashion, How soon the course downward begins.

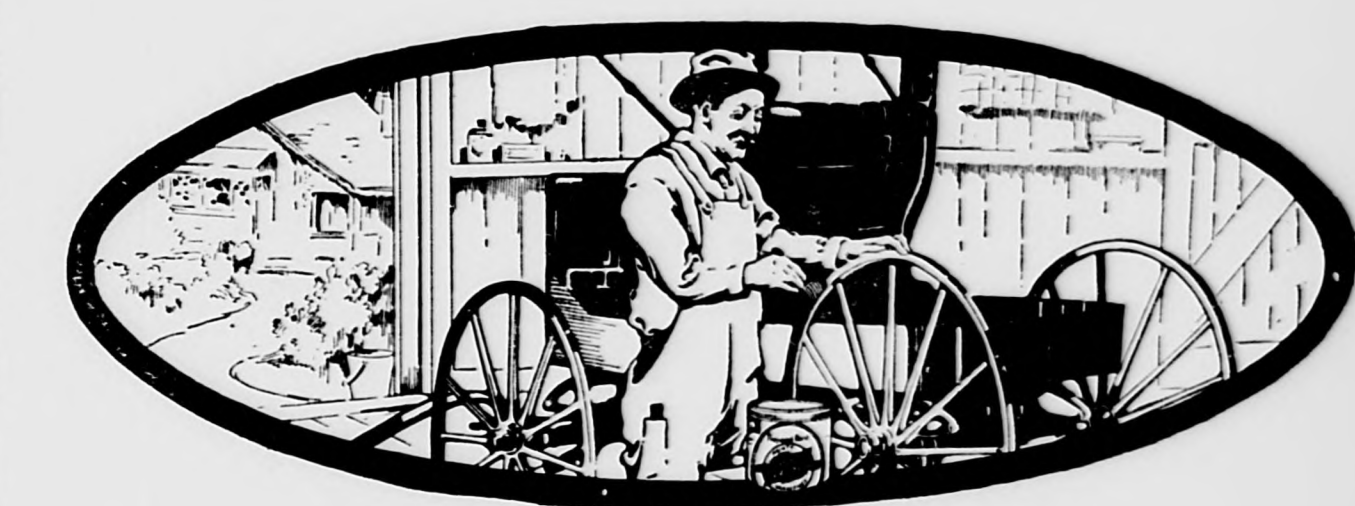

You talk of the mines of the Black Hills. They're wealthy in gold without doubt, But ah! there is gold on the farm, boys. If only you'll shovel it out!

The mercantile trade is a hazard. The goods are first high and then low; Better stick to the farm a while longer, Don't be in a hurry to go!

The great busy West has inducements, And so has the busiest mart. But wealth is made in a day, boys. Don't be in a hurry to start.

The bankers are brokers are wealthy. They take in their million or so, Ah, think of the fraud and deception. Don't be in a hurry to go!

The farm is the safest and surest. The orchards are loaded today. You're free as the air of the mountain. And I wish all your sons were here. Better stay on the farm a while longer. Though profits come in rather slow, Remember you're nothing to risk, boys. Don't be in a hurry to go!

A strong argument in favor of a Metropolitan Council or some board in which every one of the forty towns and cities of the Metropolitan district shall be represented, may be found in a notice received by the Transcript, which some people are not inclined to accept. It is an assessment of $207.84 for interest on the Charles River Dam bonds, this is in addition to our Metropolitan tax and, on the basis of last year, we will have a total Metropolitan tax of about $7,000 and we are venturing the assertion that there are not ten men in town who know the $80,000,000 Metropolitan money was being spent until after it was done.

Rev. A. A. Berle delivered a good sermon last Sunday on "My Religion and Little Stealing" and paid some attention to "Tax Dodgers." The assessors are not at work on the 1911 taxes and no doubt will run across the usual number of "Tax Dodgers" which some people may look at as "Little Stealings," and others as being smart; but who suffers from the "smart trick," and who is it stolen from, not from the town or city but from the men who pay honest taxes, from the poor who are dependent on the town or city, from the schools which need the money from the towns which need repairs. In short it is a steal from every department of the town or city where the "Tax Dodgers" live.

The senior Physics class have taken up the study of Miller's Progressive Problems in Physics.
The tickets for the class dance which will be held in the school hall, April 21st, are now on sale and must be procured
two days before the dance.

Visitors at the school this week were Wallace Drake, W. H. S. 30, Dartmouth college; Miss A. Lillian MacGregor, Thomas Y. Nash and Eliza C. Wheeler.
Miss Lillian Harlow of the freshman class has the heartiest sympathy of her schoolmates in the loss of her mother.

will be added to the schedule, one at Brookton, at Weymouth and the other with Brookton at Brookton.

Monday Club.
The annual meeting of the Monday
Club will be held in Clapp Memorial hall, on Monday, April 17, at 2:30 p. m. A large attendance of members is urged, as there are several important matters which should receive attention. A social hour with light refreshments will follow the business meeting.

Dead Birds Cost High.
Topeka pay for loss in crop pests.
Living costs rise and insects spread, cotton corn and garden truck affected.
New York, April 13.—While Easter bon-nets are parading the plumage of birds that check crop pests, losses to food and clothing products in the last year that amount to over $10 for every person in the United States have been reported here today as chiefly due to the destruction of these "harmful" insect eaters. According to statistics just gathered by the government biological survey at Washington, officials of the National Association of Audubon Societies declare that the cost of living has been raised to cover a billion dollars loss in agricultural produce from the larvae of insects and rodents that would be largely wiped out if their natural bird food were protected from the killer men, market butchers and pot hunters. Every year that such commercial interests are allowed to thin the ranks of the insect eating species higher prices must be paid by the ultimate consumer for vegetables, fruit, cotton cloth and many other necessary staples, it is predicted.

Almost every article of food except pasta has been found to cost to the consumer today with an added cost to cover many millions of dollars of loss that the government experts have proved is largely due to the increasing lack of insect-eating birds to drive away the pests that are spreading over the fields. Such staples as corn are now known to fall short of a supply that means lower prices, in some measure, on account of the depletion of the wild birds and the consequent increase in their noxious insect prey. If the orchards, fields, gardens and plantations of America were not being guarded by fewer and fewer of these insect eaters
each year, the records show, their yield would be increased and the price of their products lowered.

Shoe Industry.

But one week remaining before Easter Sunday, shoe stores must do a big business if their sales are to be in keeping with the season of a late Easter. There has been little incentive to buy shoes for spring wear when any night may promise a snow storm, so the sales have been hardly up to the normal, and the effect has been felt in the factories where shoe orders ordinarily would have been received before this time. The retailer has been obliged to wait for an opening in order to move his stock, and the manufacturer has been compelled by the same reason to fold his hands and wait for spring. A few orders have been received, coming over the wire, but the whole industry felt better.

Salesmen showing fall and winter styles have been cultivating business with some satisfactory results. Some factories are getting orders as large as last year, and in some instances the demand is better.
With these orders, and the duplicate spring business which should develop from now on for some weeks the shoe factories ought to be able to operate on better time than they have recently.

There seems to be no lack of demand for the latest shoe. Pumps and slippers are being turned out in quantities, and black satin is becoming a good second, with a good market in prospect.
There are manufacturers who predict an end speedily to the era of black velvet, but at present the velvet shoe is selling well to young women. The revolution, if one comes, will not be sudden, but the black shoe is worn out, which may be
by the time the fall goods are presented,
and if, as it is claimed, few women buy a second pair, the craze will end naturally and easily.

While it is generally conceded that the shoe business has been hit by the late season, the limit at the other end of a woman's pocket has not been reached, and the length of the top is a matter of discussion. There have been plenty of indications that the tops of the shoes for the season will be increased in height until that part of the boot will be better described by being called the leg. The ordinary height of the top of a woman's shoe is six inches, but the fall styles show tops seven, eight, nine and ten inches high, and the question of the practicability is a matter of discussion.

Fashion authorities have intimated that the bottom of skirts would be higher from the ground than they have been, and this condition naturally suggested the leg boot, but the tendency to run to abnormal heights is deprecated by the trade.
Already there are too many absurdities in style, and anything higher than seven and one-half inches, is considered unnecessarily extreme.

These high boots, while being necessary from the standpoint of utility, unless the wearers are to adopt kites, are unprofitable to handle. They cost more to manufacture so must sell for higher prices,
and be bought by limited patronage.
They are better pattern and a boot with from fourteen to twenty buttons is difficult to fit without relocating the buttons, which adds to the cost to the dealer. If they were made in the lace pattern, there would be less objections as lace boots are adorned, as the buttons are not so conspicuous as the buttons on the plain shoe.

Clapp Memorial Association.

On account of several members of the bowling league being unable to continue rolling any longer, the league came to a close on Wednesday evening. On that night team 1, Norton Pratt, captain and team 5, Stuart Vinal, captain, rolled for the championship of the league. Before the match team 5 needed only two points out of four to win the cups, but team 1 came with a rush and took two strings and total, thus giving them three out of four points and defeating their opponents by one lone point. Mr. Dix for team 1 and Raymond for team 5, rolled for the team winning were Norton Pratt, E. G.
Gould, Albert Newman, H. H. Dix and Harry Bates. The high average cup was captured by Harry Bates, the high single string by Arthur Cunningham with 111 and the latter also captured the high string total.

The World in Boston.

Every department of "The World in Boston" is humming with the activity of the last two weeks of preparation for the massive exposition, to be held in the Medanics Building, April 22 to May 20.
The building will be turned over to the Exposition management on the morning of April 17 and installation of the scenery and exhibits will be rushed day and night so as to be ready for the opening hour on April 22.

Regretting that he could not accept the invitation to be present and open the exposition in person, President Taft has agreed to send from the White House a message of greeting and to press a telegraph key, sending a signal to the Mechanics Building, and in that way declare the exposition open. Bishop Lawrence of the Episcopal diocese of Eastern Massachusetts, Mrs. Helen Barrett Montgomery, and Dr. Booker T. Washington, will be speakers at the opening ceremonies.

The thousands of stewards have been trained for the service of the exposition, impressing the natives of all lands they represent. The time tables have been made up for the service of the stewards so that the exposition will be manned at all hours by regiments of the great army of workers. One thousand children have been trained to take part in little plays and tableaux and to play the games which children of other countries play.

The rehearsal of the great chorus for the Pageant of Darkness and Light are drawing near the end and the musical director, Mr. Ephraim Cutter, Jr., is greatly pleased with the efficiency which has developed. Rehearsals of the participants, who are to be on the platform, are being held every evening. Each episode of the Pageant is being rehearsed on successive nights.

CAMELS OF THE ARABS.

Various Ways the Desert Nomads Use the Animals' Milk.

Nearly 90,000 camels are used in the vicinity of Baghdad as beasts of burden, and with donkeys they form the only means of carrying goods to inland points. For a common burden camel $30 is a fair price, though the travellers, or swift messenger camels, are worth more. A young camel can sometimes be had about Baghdad for as little as $3 or $4.

Besides its use for riding and carrying purposes, the Mesopotamian Arab depend on the camel for milk. Shoes are made from its tough, calloused hide, and in times of famine its brittle, stringy flesh is eaten. Condensed milk made by boiling fresh camel milk until evaporation leaves only a hard, chalky substance, is prized among the desert nomads. By rubbing this substance between the hands it reduces to powder, and when mixed with warm water it makes a refreshing drink. The camels are among the desert folk, "Merces," as it is called, will keep in good condition for two years. When made from buttermilk it tastes sour and is prized only by the Arabs who have eaten much of sweet dates. Fresh, warm camel milk is also the food of many valuable horses owned by desert sheiks.

Camels are valued for their strength and endurance. They can travel their eleventh or twelfth month. When a camel caravan is on the march the very young camels are often tied upon the backs of the mother animal, since they cannot endure the fatigue of a long march. Valuable dogs and Arab breeds of camels, called "slingers," also ride in the same way.—Chicago Record-Herald.

VIENNA DEATH NOTICES.

They Read Like an Extract From a Family History.

"Don't die in Vienna. You'll be sorry if you do," writes an American on his first visit to that city, "not because of the usual notices, but on account of the death notices in the papers, and the way they are written sorts of ads, and range in size according to the desire for notice on the part of the family of the late intended. Every possible title is mentioned, and the name of every member of the family goes to make up the notice. A death announcement black bordered and covering half a page of the paper is nothing unusual. Here is a sample:

"Bruno Weiss, purveyor of lubricating oil to his imperial and royal majesty, and his wife, Amalie-born Horstely, in their own and in the names of their children—Hans, Otto, Minna, Laura and Hilde—and their sons-in-law, Military Surgeon Dr. Lois Krobinsky and Architect Oscar Jellinek;
their daughters—Maria Louise, born Lederman, and Marie, born Anspacker, as also in the names of their grandchildren—here follows a long string of names—and their mother and mother-in-law, Franz Ernestine Winkler, relict of Commercial Councilor Anton Winkler, announce to their friends the entrance into eternal rest, after a long and severe illness, of their dearly beloved son, Arthur, in the twenty-sixth year of his age."

"This is correct except as to the names."—New York Tribune.

He Was Just Thinking.
"Mary," said a man to his spouse,
who was gifted with a rapidly moving tongue, "did you ever hear the story of the precious gems?"

"No," she replied. "What is it?"

"It's a fairy legend, my grandfather told me when I was a boy," the husband continued. "It was about a woman from whose lips fell a diamond or a ruby at every word she spoke."

"Well," said his wife as he pause.
"That's all there is of it, my dear,"
he replied. "But I was just thinking
if I could make my fortune as a jeweler."

Love of Trees.
We find our most soothing companionship in trees among which we have lived some of which we ourselves may have planted. We lean against them, and they never betray our trust, they shield us from the sun and from the rain, their gentle whispering is a new birth which never loses its freshness, they lay their helpful roles at our feet in autumn; in winter they stand erect, monuments of patience and of truth, for they hide nothing, not even the little leaf buds which hint to us of hope, the last element in their triple symbolism.—Dr. O. W. Holmes.

The Furture Look.
Here is something worth while for bachelors to consider.
A Boston woman says she can detect
a bachelor as far as she can see him.
She always knows a bachelor by his furture look. The furture look, she explains, is something akin to that of a hunted animal, always on the watch for snarls and pitfalls. Of course this may only be a Boston legend, but it would be well for all other single unfortunate to take a good look at themselves in the mirror and find that telltale look. If they do there is an easy way to efface it.—Cleveland

A Fish Sales Science.

There appears to be no limit to scientific curiosity, especially in Germany. Not long ago a scientist of Leipzig, wishing to ascertain whether fish were warmer than the water they live in, stuck a needle connected with a thermoelectric circuit into a living fish in an aquarium. The needle formed one element of the circuit, while the other element was immersed in the same water that contained the fish. The latter was not seriously injured by the needle and quickly became indifferent to it. Then as the fish swam about, carrying the needle, the ingenious savant closed the circuit and kept watch of the galvanometer. It showed no deflection whatever, from which he concluded that the fish and the water were precisely equal in temperature, for had either been warmer than the other a current would have been generated in the circuit.—Chicago Record-Herald.

DON'T EXPERIMENT.

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Weymouth Citizen's Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys.

If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are all symptoms of kidney trouble and you should seek a remedy which is known to cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has cured many stubborn cases in Weymouth. Follow the advice of a Weymouth citizen and he cured himself.

Mrs. O. Binney, 10 Norfolk street, Weymouth, Mass., says: "I was a victim of backache for ten years and I spent a small fortune for medicine and doctors' treatments, but grew worse each year. I had heard a number of people say that Doan's Kidney Pills had cured them of backache, and I finally procured a supply at George R. Kemp's drug store. I had not quite finished the contents before I noticed a decided change for the better, and by the time I had used five boxes, I had nothing whatever to complain of. I give credit for this great improvement solely to the use of Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c cents. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Boilingbrook called England's great statesman, William Pitt (Lord Chatham), "Sublimity Pitt," and he dubbed his sister Ann "Divinity Pitt." But that must have been long after there were written and received the delightful letters and brought before the public, his "Little Nan," his "Little Jug."

"Oh, for the restless tongue of dear little Jug," he exclaimed, a letter to his sister, for when Chatham was calling on her in his later life, complained of decay with the words, "I fear that I am growing an old woman." Ann briskly replied:

"I am glad of it. I was afraid you were growing an old man, which, as you know, is a much worse thing."

Branding Loafers.

The house of 250 figures in an extraordinary act passed by parliament in 1547. An able-bodied man or woman found loitering and not seeking work for the space of three days could be seized and brought before two justices of the peace, who, upon confession or on the proof of two witnesses, "shall immediately cause the said laborer to be marked with a hot iron on the breast the mark of 'V' and adjudged the said person living so idly to his presentor, to be his slave for two years. The said slave shall be made to work by beating, chaining or otherwise." If convicted of running away during this period the justices could cause him to be branded on the forehead or the cheek with the letter "S" and then adjudged to his master as a slave forever. For running away a second time the penalty was death.—London Standard.

Illustrated His System.

It was a habit of the wise Frenchman Arago to look during his lectures at the young men who appeared the least of the students, and when he perceived that this one understood he knew all the other did.

Once in a drawing room he had just explained this habit of his to some friends when a young man entered and saluted him familiarly.

"But to whom have I the honor of speaking?" asked the scientist.

"Why, Professor Arago, you do not know me? I always attend your lectures, and you never take your eyes off me the whole time."

Kaffir English.

As a sample of Kaffir English here is a love letter sent by a Cape Colony boy to his kaffir innamorata:

Dear Miss—I have great confidence in the wisdom of the white man, but I shall thank for kindness if you will give me the privilege of letting with you the love of a kaffir man, who has drawn my serious attention to you, and that I shall appreciate you as a kaffir of an early reply and also terminating this with supreme of high education.

Taken at His Word.

"Since you are so busy today," said the urban journalist, "will you kindly tell me when and where I can meet you for an interview?"

"Go to blazes!" exclaimed the irate politician.

"Thanks," I'll consider it an appointment.—Washington Star.

Desperately Ill.

Mrs. Parker, who has been ill, has been ill, hasn't she? Mrs. Lane—I never saw her so ill. Why, for two weeks he never spoke a cross word to me.

THE SILVER DOLLAR.

Many Changes in Its Design Since It Was First Issued.

The silver dollar has undergone a great many changes since it was put in circulation in 1794. On the face of the first dollar there was stamped the figure of a young woman turned to the right and with her hair flowing, as if she was in a gale of wind. But in 1795 Congress came to her relief and ordered her hair to be tied up with a bit of ribbon. The effigy stars which appeared on the first dollar were after this reduced to the original thirteen in recognition of the number of states.

In 1809 the design was again changed, and the dollar bore the figure of a woman dressed in a flowing garment. The designer forgot, however, to put in the thirteen stars, and the coin was soon called in, the new design having been issued in 1818. Miss Anna W. Williams, a public school teacher of Philadelphia, said for the portrait—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN

That the subscriber has been appointed administrator of the estate of FREDERICK H. STERLING, late of Weymouth, in the County of Norfolk, deceased, intestate, as the law directs. All persons having demands against the same, and all persons indebted to said estate, are notified to present the same, and to make payment, respectively, to the subscriber, at his office, at 100 State Street, Boston, on or before the 1st day of May, 1911, at 10 o'clock, A. M., and this notice, after being assigned as the time and place for hearing all parties interested therein.

Weymouth, Mass., April 5, 1911.

FREDERICK O. STERLING, Administrator.

The Rector's Court.

Mrs. Thomas Roberts was once a guest at a banquet in London where he was expected to reply to a toast. The speaker who preceded Mr. Lovell said many contemptuous things about the people of the United States, avowing and repeating again and again that they were all big gamesters. As American minister at the court of St. James, Mr. Lovell was not to be trifled with in this speech, so he rose he said smilingly: "I heartily agree with the gentleman who has just spoken. Americans do bring a great deal, and I don't know where they got the habit, do you?"

Big Mouthfuls.

"Yes," whispered a man who knows everybody, "the big chap over there at the third table is a great gourmand. He's a mountain in the financial world, you know."

"Incumbent," commented the quiet observer, "instead of a mountain he looks to me like a great gorge."—Chicago News.

Boiling Alive.

The last instance of boiling to death took place in Persia in 1800. The of the was guilty of stealing state revenues and was put into a large cauldron of cold water, which was slowly heated to the boiling point. His bones were distributed as a warning among the provincial tax collectors.

Incumbent.

"Nobody wants to play bridge with Mrs. Beem. She talks all the time." "I suppose she's quiet when she's dumpy?"

"Quiet," she talks twice as much."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Going Too Far.

Along a country road walked a man and woman. The latter, a giant, stern faced female, was bullying the meek little fellow, who trudged just in front of her with downcast head. Suddenly the woman, turning, saw a bull racing down the road behind them. She quickly took refuge in the hedge, but her companion, unconscious of aught but his woes, kept on his way. The bull caught up to him and sent him spinning into a muddy ditch, then continued on its wild career. As the wretched figure crawled out of the mire he saw his better half coming toward him. Flushing up a little, he whistled, "M-M-Maria, if you hit me like a g-g-gain you'll really get my temper up, so I warn you."

More and More.

The gravedigger in "Hamlet" was a very witty man, wittier far than many of the epitaph makers who have adorned headstones with their flanges. A sample of the punning rhymes which are cut on tomb follows. It comes from the grave of William Moore, at Steyne, near London:

Here lies one More, and no more than he. The More and no more—how can that be? Why, one More and no more may lie here alone. But here lies one More, and that's more than one.

Curiosities of Etymology.

It is extraordinary how words for the same thing differ in even so small a country as England. Take "left handed," for example. In Gloucestershire such a person is described as "scrammy," in Staffordshire he becomes "crabby," the phrase for a left handed Yorkshireman is "gawdigger" or "callic hand,"

ON THE FARM

Read this column and you can have it delivered at your house with something new every week for a full year by sending $2.00 to this office now. Give your fruit trees good soil. They cannot feed and thrive on nothing.

The only successful way to fight fungus troubles in the orchard is to begin early, before the disease. Remember that fungicidal sprays are preventives, not cures.

Seeds are a good thing for a man to have. They enable him to know just what he has to sell and also what he buys.

Can't you fix it so that you will not have to buy any garden stuff this year? Of course you can. What any farmer can do, you can do. Get right at it now and make the best garden in town. Surprise yourself and the neighbors.

Let every person who has a bit of ground, plant one grapevine, at least, this spring, as with a little care in training and pruning for two or three years, it will seldom fail to produce an abundance of fruit. The soil for grapes should not be rich with stable manure, but use ground bones, or wood ashes.

The easiest way to have a supply of strawberries is to renew the bed. Make new beds, setting the plants in rows three feet apart and one foot in rows. In small gardens the plants may be set closer, with the runners cut off as fast as they appear; and if the soil is well enriched every year, the bed will bear abundance for four or five years.

Dandelions may be eradicated from the lawn by applying a few drops of gasoline at the center of each plant, using an ordinary dropper for the purpose. Another plant, which may also be used in the case of dandelions and other weed pests, is to cut off the plant at the crown and apply two or three drops of kerosene to the stump.—Agricultural Epitomist.

All eggs collected are not suitable for hatching purposes. They should be sorted to a grade. Discard all that are either above or below the average size; of eggs laid by the breed. Round eggs and eggs that are pointed at both ends should be discarded; in fact, discard all misshapen eggs. When ready to place under a hen or in an incubator, have the egg perfectly uniform as to size and shape as it is possible to get them.

As soon as the weather has become settled and the ground is warm and dry, corn should be planted. Early planting, generally speaking, gives the best results. When the weather and soil will permit, farmers ought to be ready to drop their seed.

The roots of blackberries spread so fast and far that where it is possible they should be planted in a spot a little distance from the rear of the garden, so that they will not interfere with the growth of other plants. Provide strong stakes to which to tie the canes, and do not allow them to grow more than five feet high, with lateral branches cut back to eighteen inches. Set from six to eight feet apart, each way.

Planting corn in drills is now the common practice. Flat culture is in vogue except on low lands, where cultivation in hills is still practiced. For large growing varieties of corn the rule is drills from four to five feet apart, while for small corn a distance of three feet is sufficient. The plants are thinned to from three feet to six inches in the drill according to the variety may suggest.

Feeding chicks too soon after hatching is one of the greatest causes of sickness and loss each year. Do not feed them with feed immediately after hatching. Nature provides for the chick for this length of time, and to commence to stuff them with feed immediately after hatching is to invite trouble. The first thing they should be provided with is clean, fresh water. The chick should be taken out if the weather is cold. If the chicks do not show an inclination to drink, it is a good plan to dip their bills into the water two or three times to teach them how, after which they will help themselves.

A dairyman should never complain because his cows eat too much. The more they eat, the more milk they will give. Not long since a friend of ours went to look at a cow with the purpose of buying her. The owner seemed to take pleasure in reciting how little feed she consumed. He did not take that cow, but did buy another one, which the man said was eating her head off. She is a big eater, and the milk pail shows it. In these days we do not care to hear many dairymen brag of how little their cows eat. Small feed for cows usually have pinched stomachs. We need cows with large, protruding barrels, for they are the kind that eat much and make good use of what they eat. The cow that never eats much pays it back by never producing much. Streams of milk take their origin in the cow's stomach. When there is a flood of feed at the fountain head, there is usually an overflow at the pail.—Agricultural Epitomist.

Two hunters, returning from the Catskills, decided to try some New York city humor upon the agent of a little railroad station in the foothills.

"When does the 3.49 train get in?" asked one.

The old man regarded him seriously and at length, "Waal," said he, "he generally gets in just a little behind the engine."

Later they approached him respectfully.

"About time that train is due, isn't it, uncle?"

"Yes," said the agent, "she's about due. There comes the conductor's dog."—Every body's.

A boy twelve years old with an air of melancholy resignation, went to his teacher and handed in the following note from his mother before taking his seat:

"Dear Sir: Please excuse James for not being present yesterday."

"He played truant, but you needn't whip him for it, as the boy he played truant with and him fell out, and he kicked James and a man they threw stones at caught him and licked him; and the driver of a cart they hung onto licked him; and the owner of a cat they chased licked him. Then I licked him when he came home, after which his father licked him; and I had to give him another for being impudent to me for telling his father. So you need not lick him until next time. He thinks he will attend regular in future."

Are you going over to the coronation? No, I'm not. There will be a few of us upon this side of the Atlantic Ocean this summer. Those fortunate people who are going abroad to these festivities hope to be in England for early summer, and tourists never tire of telling of the beauties of an English summer. To be sure they all tell of rain-fall and such rainstorms as even we poor New Englanders, harassed by east winds—know nothing of. But when it is pleasant and in bloom we are told it is worth a journey across seas to witness. A stream of people are to cross this summer, and doubtless many a prayer is uttered that the weather be such for the great event may be perfect.

General Jackson "while on one of his journeys to Tennessee about the time of the battle of New Orleans, arrived at a Virginia village in a very impatient state of mind, both with public affairs and with the state of the roads. The president was entertained as a guest at the house of a lady in the village, and, although he tried to be polite, the state of vexation which he was in affected him visibly. His hostess at the supper table was much alarmed to see the general yawning with great regularity a couple of almost boiling hot tea.

"Wait—wait, general!" exclaimed the lady. "Let me give you some cold water."

"No, thank you, ma'am," said the general.

Electric Road Hearing.

There was a large attendance of people at the section meeting on Monday at a hearing on the petition of the C. S. R.
Co. for some changes along Broad street and at the corner of Broad and Middle streets and intersection of Madison street.
The plan is submitted by Superintendent Conway called for some slight changes in grade on Broad street a small change of curve at Madison street and also a change at Middle street which would bring the track somewhat nearer the curb. The latter seemed to be the principal point of difference of opinion as there is scarcely room at present for a team to pass on that side of the track, and it was suggested that efforts be made to secure a small piece of land from the abutters for a widening.

While somewhat foreign to the petition there came in quite a discussion of the location of poles at different places in East Weymouth and the Street Railway
Co., the Telephone Co., and the Electric Light Co., were accused of overcrowding
the streets with poles.

Premier Polyhymn Banquet.

That the Wampatuck Encampment I. O.
O. F. never do things by halves is well known and their "banquet" and dance held in Old Fellows hall last Tuesday evening was no exception. The affair was a grand success and this fact will be explained when it is known that Mrs.
Laura Raymond Bagley had charge of the event.

The program consisted of twenty numbers of popular songs, specialties, ballads and selections by the Maud Band. Leading, Edward L. Goodrich, leader.
While all received a good apportion of "Flying Machine" by Harry French, "I've Got Your Number" by Lewis French and Ward Humphrey, "African Gold" by Josephine Sherman and a topical song by "Ally-Gardner" were especially pleasing to the extra large crowd.

Miss Silva sang very delightfully a beautiful ballad and the selections by the Maud Band dressed in the "Hingville Horn Band" in support. It was dressed, were well appreciated.

Herbert Tirrell acted as toast master at the banquet and his assistants were Alfred W. Gardner, John E. Merchant, Mrs.
Mildred F. Tilden, Ward Humphrey, Miss Margaret Sullivan and John Hunt on the ladies side and Edward C. Clark, Ralph Fint, Josephine Sherman, Harry Ellis Brown, Clement A. Gardner and Charles Kilburn manipulated the bones.
The waiters at the banquet were J. Russell Cushing, C. Lewis French, Francis Silva and Anthony Smith, while Alice Bowler and Helen Sullivan served as maid.

The jokes and toasts on the local citizens were very bright and afforded much fun, while the "Finale" and the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" were very pretty indeed.

The ushers were kept busy presenting the many black faced artists with floral gifts from their friends in the hall.

At the close of the entertainment refreshments were served in the basement and from eleven to two thirty dancing held sway with music furnished by Mrs.
Merchant's orchestra.

Public Meeting.

A cordial invitation is extended to the citizens of Quincy, Braintree, Hingham, Cohasset, Hali and Weymouth to be present at a public meeting in Weymouth Town Hall at East Weymouth on the evening of April 22 at 7:45 p.m. in favor of what is termed the "Long Bill" now before the Mass. Legislature for the improvement of Boston Harbor from Nahant to Hull. Mr. Long will be present as speaker and illustrate his ideas with stereotypical views. Let us unite to improve Massachusetts Commercial Interest.

WEYMOUTH BOARD OF TRADE.

Monday Club.

At Old Fellows opera house, East Weymouth, April 15, the Monday club of Weymouth gave its annual "Children's Day." The entertainment which consisted of piano, violin and cornet solos with some recitations, all given by the children, was much enjoyed by the youthful audience. The refreshments served them were quite as pleasing as the other features. Cakes and a slice of ice cream with a tiny Easter chicken standing in the center made the eyes sparkle and the lips smile. A fine music for an hour of dancing closed the program.

Monday, April 17, the Weymouth Monday club held its annual meeting at Clapp Memorial Hall. After the election of officers for the ensuing year and the transaction of the other business necessary at the last meeting, the club was addressed by Dr. Millet of Boston on "Tuberculosis," a subject which is engrossing so much of the time and attention of thoughtful people at the present time. A social closed the meeting for the afternoon and for the season, and the members dispersed knowing that the season of 1910-1911 had been
of profit as well as pleasure.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our sincere gratitude to our many friends for their kind words of sympathy and many floral remembrances in our recent bereavement.

TRIENNIAL FAIR.

Fogg Library at South Weymouth, the Beneficiary of a Successful Event.

The event of the week, if not for the season, at South Weymouth, has been the triennial fair in the interest of the Fogg Library.

A hard working committee planned
well for the three days sale and entertainment and the plans made were admirably executed, giving great satisfaction to the patrons and adding materially to the treasury of the institution.

The committee immediately in charge were Bates Torrey, chairman, with Howard H. Joy and Walter L. Bates, lieutenants. The hall decorations were especially fine and while "gentle spring" has been slow in coming, the interior was quite in evidence from the hall.

Tables and booths on every side were quite suggestive of the "Bazaar of Nations" and yet were presided over by the ladies, who talked persuasively United States to their patrons: Mrs. Lawrence Barnard, Mrs. Eugene A. Barker, Mrs.
E. E. Egan, a high school April Mrs.
William Wagner with Charles H. Gaffney in charge of specialties.

Different organizations in the village vied with each other in furnishing entertainment of which there were four, Tuesday evening, Wednesday afternoon, Wednesday evening and Thursday afternoon.

The Tuesday evening affair was by Clapp Memorial No. 15, F. of A. and they were especially fortunate in securing the following talent who gave a concert program which was highly enjoyed:

Miss Elizabeth M. Lynch, soprano; Miss Emma E. Egan, contralto; Joseph J.
Ecker, baritone and James A. Ecker, pianist.

The Old Colony Club was sponsor for the Wednesday afternoon and they did well for the fair as they would have done for themselves and that is saying much.

"Pop Concert" by the O. C. orchestra was the afternoon entertainment and the program given lacked nothing of being a truly "Patriotic Day" affair as "pieces of playing, popular and patriotic"
music were played.

Between the afternoon and evening performance "winsome waitresses" served "refreshing refreshments" and the entertainment was "Little Folks from Amsterdam," personated by young American artists: select songs and instrumental music, vaudeville sketch, athletic dance and tableaux.

The Norfolk Club capped the climax of the last night by presenting two plays adopted to the occasion by Prince H. Tir-rell. The story of "Ten Years After" was told by Mr. Tirrell and Mr. Joy and the characters in "What Do You Know About That?" were sustained by Stephen
F. Pratt, Earl W. Bates, Mrs. Scotcher,
Mr. Scotcher, J. B. Reed and Mrs. Field and the curtain was rung down on the Fogg Library Triennial.

TUFTS LIBRARY.

With the limited means at its disposal
the management has materially improved the appearance of the cemetery in the past year and hope to do as much or more the current year, and to accomplish this, needs but a small sum of money as compared to what is being spent in other gardens.

Twenty five or thirty dollars a year will do all that is planned, and as there are thousands of descendants of those who are buried there a smallittance from each would do the work, and anyone wishing to help in this work can do so by remitting their little sum to Charles
A. Lord, clerk and treasurer, South Weymouth.

Union Literary Circle.

The Union Literary Circle was most fortunate at its last meeting in having secured Rev. Philip Nordell of Brookline to address it on the subject of "Scandinavians in America." Mr. Nordell gave a most interesting paper, sketching first the traditional emigration and the early New Settlements, then passing to the real immigration of the last half of the nineteenth century, presenting by diagrams and statistics the enormous increase in numbers from eighteen hundred and fifty to nineteen hundred. He next took up their places of settlement in this country;
their reasons for coming; and their ability to adapt themselves to the manners and customs of the country, their increasing prosperity and their development along the lines of education and higher ethics, making mention of Ex-governor Johnson and Senator Nelson of Minn., Charles Ries and others among the best known of their people. Mr. Nordell was listened to with close attention and at the close of the paper a vote of thanks was extended to him for a most interesting and instructive evening.

The next meeting of the circle will be held at the home of Mrs. Ford, Liberty street, East Braintree, Tuesday evening,
April 25.

Clapp Memorial Association.

The Clapp team of senior boys played the high school team on Wednesday morning and went down to defeat mainly on account of Lord's batting and Humphrey's pitching. The score was 12-3.

On Wednesday afternoon the candidates for the Clapp Memorial team were given a try out. A scrub game was held and a number of likely players were put through their paces. For the next fortnight scrub games will be played and at the end of that time, a better idea of the material for the team can be obtained.

The Boys' club have received their new white uniforms and were them for the first time in Wednesday's game.

DO NOT EXPERIMENT.

You Will Make No Mistake if You
Follow This Weymouth Citizen's Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys.
If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment.
These are all symptoms of kidney trouble and you should seek a remedy which is known to cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. So need to experiment. It has cured many stubborn cases in Weymouth.
Follow the advice of a Weymouth citizen and be cured yourself.

Mrs. O. Binney, 10 Norfolk street, Weymouth, Mass., says: "I was a victim of backache for ten years and I spent a small fortune for medicine and doctors' treatments, but grew worse each year.
I had heard a number of people say that Doan's Kidney Pills had cured them of backache, and I finally procured a supply at George R. Kemps drug store. I had noticed a decided change for the better, and by the time I had used five boxes, I had nothing whatever to complain of. I give credit for this great improvement solely to the use of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Newspaper Patronage.

The following is yellow with age and the man who wrote it slumbers in dust, but the article is as good as it ever was:
"Many long and dreary years in the publishing business has forced the conviction upon me that newspaper patronage is a word of many definitions, and that a great majority of mankind are either ignorant of the correct definition, or are dishonest in a strict, Biblical sense of the word. Newspaper patronage has as many colors as the rainbow, and is as changeable as a chameleon. The man who comes in, subscribes for a paper, pays for it in advance, and goes home and reads it with a proud satisfaction that it is his. He hands in his advertisement, and the advantages thereof.
This is patronage."

Another man asks you to send him the paper, and goes off without saying a word about the pay. Times flies on you are in need of the money, and you ask him to pay the sum he owes you. He flies into a passion, perhaps pays, perhaps not, and orders his paper stopped. This is called patronage.

One man brings in a fifty cent advertisement, a two dollar bill thrown in, and when you decline, he goes off mad. Even
this is called patronage.

One man does not take your paper. It is too high priced; but he borrows and reads it regularly. And that could be called newspaper patronage.

One man likes your paper; he takes a copy, pays for it, and gets his friends to
do the same for he is not always grumbling to you or others, but has a friendly
word. If an accident occurs in his section he informs the editor. This is newspaper patronage.

One man likes your paper; he takes a copy, pays for it, and gets his friends to
do the same for he is not always grum-
bling to you or others, but has a friendly
word. If an accident occurs in his sec-

paper patronage.

One man brings in a fifty cent advertisement, a two dollar bill thrown in, and
when you decline, he goes off mad. Even
this is called patronage.

One man does not take your paper. It is too high priced; but he borrows and
reads it regularly. And that could be

The Knight of the Silver Star

A Romance of Drums and Drums.

By PERCY BRENNER.

Copyright, 1907, by P. F. Fenno & Co.

CHAPTER VI.

"I am probably right," I answered.

"Of course he is. I don't doubt your pluck, Verrall, but you've had no practice."

"Therefore there can be no dis honor."

"Sure, it's not the honor or dishonor I'm thinking of. It's the result. A knight sent from Klyn has got to fight to the death at his first encounter, and as you are not a knight, you have no right to fight."

"A cheerful outlook," I said, with a forced laugh. "What shall we fight with, swords?"

"Lances—a fierce charge across the arena, and then—"

"Just bring," I suggested.

"It's no joking matter. This Verrall, I hear, has never been worsted, and it's no light game he'll play at this tournament. I warrant, if he can put an end to your adventures, my boy, he will have you ever used a lance?"

"I have learned how to handle one since I came here."

"But have you ever charged at anything with it?"

"No."

"Then you don't know what a devil's toy it is to play with. There's only one thing to be done—we must get out of it somehow."

"When is this tournament to be?"

"At once, tomorrow or the next day. It is only for the princess to decide."

"There is a court tonight."

"O'Ryan nodded."

"Come, man, lighten your heart a little. We're not tied to the posts in the square yet."

"It's a question of time, I'm thinking. I'd feel a deal safer in Yadsara."

"To say that I had no plan in my mind when I attended court that night would be untrue."

"I was a late arrival upon a more than usually brilliant scene. Here in Yadsara, I was met by the same as at home, more color and freedom than there would be at such a function in the old country, perhaps, but the same foundation to both—political intrigue and personal interest."

"The first man I encountered was Verrall."

"I have been waiting for you," he said. "There is mischief brewing. It hangs in the air tonight. Verrall and some of his party have been pressing round the princess ever since she came here."

"And she is pleased with such attention?" I asked.

"I could read neither pleasure nor displeasure in her face. Few can read Verrall, if he chooses that they shall not."

"That is true. Even a princess cannot help being a woman."

"Verrall has a persuasive tongue, and he is her kinsman. That counts for something."

"For much, my dear Verrall. It is difficult to refuse a kinsman, and Verrall, knowing this, takes advantage and asks hard things. I will learn more of this intrigue."

"And speak carefully," he cautioned. "Much depends upon your caution."

"Who could know that better than I? We were confirmation needed it came in the many glances directed to the princess, and the way to the top of the hall where Princess Daria was."

"Sir Verrall?"

"It was a woman who called me as I was making my way through the crowd, and I could not refuse to answer her beckoning finger. She was standing one of a little group of ladies and cavaliers, looking out most tastefully, leaders of fashion in the court of Princess Daria. I knew the woman, as middle-aged a little vixen as I was."

"What was her name?" she asked, as, bowing low, I joined the party.

"Who would dare to speak anything but the truth to me, Lady Aldrida?"

"As readily as ever with words, Sir Verrall," said a young jackanapes, a Drusnellian type of placidly loquacious, who came up to me as I was about to leave.

"And doesn't you, Sir Knight, if deeds are called for," I answered, touching the hilt of my sword.

"You are quick to take offense where none was intended."

"I am a soldier first, a courtier afterward," I answered. "Pardon my shortcomings."

"I don't think," said Lady Aldrida, "I was afraid we were to be disappointed."

"I should grieve to disappoint you. Will you tell me what is expected of me?"

"It is whispered that there is to be a grand tournament and that you are to hold the shield of the Knight of the Silver Star," said Verrall.

"I have been suggesting a brave display, Sir Verrall," he went on, as though he had been the greatest of friends, "a display to may young hearts beat with pleasure and bright eyes sparkle with excitement. The princess has not yet given her consent. Will you not add your consent to mine?"

Arranging a Fitting.

THE dressmaker finds the telephone a great help.

It affords instant communication with customers.

Little details can be settled and a long walk avoided.

Every woman likes to keep in touch with her dressmaker.

She likes to know about the latest designs and materials and how her work is progressing.

The best way to find out is by telephone.

All the leading wholesale houses can be reached quickly by a dressmaker with a Bell telephone. It saves time, money, energy for her.

Any information about having a telephone in your home will be given by the Local Manager.

CHILDREN OF UAP.

They Don't Have to Worry About Food, Clothes or Shelter.

In describing Uap, one of the Carolinian islands, Dr. W. H. Furness says that children become more or less public property on that island as soon as they are able to run about from house to house.

They cannot without extraordinary exertion fall off the island, and, like little guinea pigs, can find food anywhere. Their clothing grows by every roadside, and any shelter or no shelter is good enough for the night. They cannot starve. There are no wild beasts or snakes to harm them. What matters it if they sleep under the high, overhanging eaves of their foster mother's nursery or curl up on mats beneath their father's thatch?

There is no implication here that parents are fond of their children. On the contrary, they love them so much that they see their own children in all children. It is the ease of life and its surroundings which has attracted the emotion of parental love.

When a father has merely to say to his wife and children, "Go out and shake your breakfast off the trees," or "Go to the thicket and gather your clothes," to him the struggle for existence is meaningless, and without a struggle the prizes of life are held in his hand.

Somewhat the children are always about the houses and to the fore in all excitements, and never did I see them roughly handled or harshly treated.

MASTERING A TEMPER.

The Method by Which Marion Crawford Controlled His Anger.

Mrs. Hugh Fraser, sister of the late Marion Crawford, tells some interesting stories of him in her book, "A Diplomatic Wife in Many Lands." It was at the Villa Negroni, Rome, that Crawford was born, an event which so delighted his father that, as Mrs. Fraser says, "my father was beside himself with joy and showed presents on all of us to make us understand and share it."

When young Francis was about ten years old it dawned upon him that he had a violent and uncontrollable temper, and with the simplicity which marked all his character he decided to get rid of it.

"One member of the family constantly irritated him to the verge of frenzy, and he invented a form of self-discipline which very few children would have thought of imposing on themselves. My mother entered his room one day and found him walking round and round it, carrying on his back a heavy wooden shingle which he had lifted off the floor of the window."

"My dear child," she exclaimed, "what are you doing?"

"Getting over a rage," he replied doggedly, continuing the exercise.

"When I am so angry that I want to kill somebody I come in here and carry the shingle three times round the room before I answer them. It is the only way."

Fatiguing Battery Wires.

There are two ways of doing almost everything, and this is especially true of fastening battery and coil terminal wires. One way is wrong, and the other is to twist the bare end of the wire around the terminal as the hands of the clock move and then tighten up the nut. The reason for this is because the screw thread is right handed; therefore the tendency of the tightening will be to twist the wire around the terminal tighter than it was. Should the wire be twisted the other way the nut would tend to unscrew, but it would not slip under the nut and very likely get a very poor hold.—Boston Herald.

Snubbed the Czar.

Padrevere once dared to affront the czar, with the result that he soon received a note commanding him to leave St. Petersburg, where he had been looking for a number of converts, within twenty-four hours. The czar had sent for him and paid him a neat compliment, but is said to have received the chilly response, "Sire, I am a Pole."

No Chance to Be Cheap.

"Why do you delay proposing to that girl?"

"I'm saving up to buy an engagement ring."

"Something especially expensive?"

"I'll buy the best I can get for her. Her father runs a jewelry store."—Exchange.

Not as Bad as That.

"Is your master in a somnolent condition?"

"No, sir, he was pretty violent, but now he's asleep."—Baltimore American.
